Former Wall Street insider sentenced to prison

Fallen Wall Street insider Rajat Gupta was sentenced to two years in prison yesterday for leaking Goldman Sachs boardroom secrets to the hedge fund manager at the center of the U.S. government's crackdown on insider trading.

It was a much lighter sentence than prosecutors had sought.

U.S. District Judge Jed Rakoff

SPENCER PLATT/GETTY IMAGES

wrestled over the course of a two-hour hearing with the question of why Gupta, a once-respected businessman, had turned his back on an "extraordinary" and "selfless" life to commit a crime he did not profit from directly.

"I have never encountered a defendant whose past history suggests such an extraordinary devotion ... to people in need,"

Rakoff said. Yet Gupta's past good deeds "starkly contrast with the nature and circumstances of his crimes."

Gupta, 63, had no visible reaction to the sentence. He was also ordered to pay a $5 million fine.

A Manhattan federal jury found him guilty in June of feeding tips about Goldman Sachs at the height of the 2008 financial crisis to hedge fund tycoon Raj Rajaratnam, his friend and business associate. Rajaratnam is now serving an 11-year prison term for insider trading. Gupta's sentence was less than the eight to 10 years sought by prosecutors, but more than the punishment of probation and community service that Gupta's lawyers had requested. REUTERS

MTA promising Wi-Fi access after a mere six-year wait

► Wi-Fi available in six stations now ► Set to expand to additional 30 over the next two years ► Advocate worries adding service will cause further annoyances

Subway riders who clutch their phones throughout underground commutes may want more than just music to listen to. They may want to check e-mail or even make a call.

But those days for every subway rider are far off, an MTA representative told the City Council yesterday — 72 months away, in fact.

Craig Stewart, senior corporate management officer of the MTA, briefed City Council members yesterday about ways to bring more technology to the city's transportation lines, from countdown clocks to train updates.

One initiative that is ever so slowly on the rise is Wi-Fi access in subway stations.

Stewart told the council that AT&T and T-Mobile service began in six stations in August.

Next up? The remaining 271 underground stations, to be completed within 72 months from that date. They promise 30 stations within two years, Stewart said.

The project aims to set up wireless access only in stations, not in the tunnels in-between.

Gene Russianoff of the Straphangers Campaign told Metro that Wi-Fi is an amenity many people want but he is cautious about potentially annoying consequences.

"We wouldn't support wiring the tunnels so people could be acting on trains the way they do on the LIRR and Metro-North," Russianoff said.

► Subway riders hoping for Wi-Fi on their commutes to work could be waiting as many as six years.

More iPhone thefts?

Some City Council members expressed security concerns that wireless access would lend itself to increased cell-phone use at a time when cell-phone snatching appears to be on the rise.

The MTA assured council members that it is working in collaboration with the NYPD to install more cameras in "around 140" of the total 460 stations.

460 There are 460 stations in the MTA system. To combat theft, the NYPD wants to install cameras in 140 stations.

Just six stations along New York City's subway system currently have wireless access. It could take years to hook up the rest of them.

How does

NYC compare?

How wired is New York City's underground transportation system compared to those of other major cities? Here's a look:

- San Francisco: SF's BART (Bay Area Rapid Transit) offers "a mostly continuous mobile signal ... on your wireless phone from Balboa Park into downtown SF, through the Transbay Tube and all throughout the Oakland underground," according to its website.
- Philadelphia: A media official at SEPTA in Philadelphia says Philly has wireless in its five transit hubs in the center of the city, which has been available for slightly more than two years.
- Chicago: A CTA media rep said Chicago riders already have 3G access underground, and Mayor Rahm Emanuel called in July for Wi-Fi in all tunnels.
- Washington, D.C.: Cell service providers have been setting up access for transit riders in D.C. for the past three years. The first 20 stations were enabled in 2009, and they expect to have all 86 in a matter of months.
- Boston: The MBTA currently has Internet access by service carriers in 26 stations and 13.1 miles of tunnel.

Officials announce new plans for scanners at city airports

We will all soon be faceless body outlines in the eyes of TSA agents at city airports.

The controversial full body scanners criticized for being too invasive are being replaced at major airports, including John F. Kennedy Airport and LaGuardia Airport, with scanners that show a less revealing body image, officials said.

The full body scanners, called "backscatters," have been at the center of debates over airport security since they were introduced in 2009. Critics argue that they emit too much radiation and show revealing images of passenger's bodies beneath their clothing.

The TSA defended the scanners for their ability to detect non-metallic threats, including liquid explosives. The backscatters emit the same amount of radiation as two minutes of flying on an airplane, according to the TSA's ► Scanners will be changed at area airports.

The new machine

The "millimeter wave" scanner is a newer, smaller machine and uses a rotating antenna to create a more generic outline of a passenger's body seen on the monitor for a TSA agent. It does not use radiation, but rather radio waves.

TSA officials told Metro replacing the larger machines with millimeter wave scanners will allow for shorter wait times at security checkpoints and enhance passenger privacy.

website.

The agency denied that the decision to switch out the backscatters had anything to do with radiation levels.

The decision came as welcome news to local politicians like Brooklyn Councilman David Greenfield, an outspoken critic of the backscatter full body scanners.

"I've been called by women who were convinced they were picked out of line by a TSA employee who wanted to see an image of them," Greenfield told Metro. "It's a significant improvement; it's still not perfect."

The backscatters were removed from LaGuardia earlier this summer, and the TSA is currently removing them from JFK, officials said. Newark never had backscatters.

The facts

► The Police Athletic League serves youths ages 2 to 19.

What is PAL?

► In 1914, the then-commissioner of the NYPD, Arthur Woods, asked his police officers to do more than just fight crime: He wanted them to help some of the neediest New Yorkers in their precincts. Woods was particularly concerned about the lack of open space for New York City children to play.

► Today the organization Woods founded is known as the Police Athletic League, a nonprofit that helps set up safe recreation areas, after-school programs and mentoring.

► Once a month, Metro will feature updates about what the Police Athletic League is doing and how it is working to help make New York City streets healthier and safer.

Police Athletic League puts more emphasis on education

The Police Athletic League's after-school programs always could be counted on for sports and arts instruction.

But this year, PAL is placing an increased focus on education, particularly with respect to science, technology, engineering and math.

The goal, according to PAL Executive Director Alana Sweeny, is to combat an achievement gap in low-income communities.

"They're really learning hands-on, and they're not even realizing they're learning," Sweeny said.

On a recent Friday at PAL's Sotomayor Community Center in the Bronx, fourth- and fifth-graders were being taught how to reduce, reuse and recycle, while in another room second- and third-graders were learning about air by drawing pictures and performing experiments.

► Children draw and do homework with PAL.

PAL opens up three new centers

The Police Athletic League opened up three new centers this year: the Sotomayor Community Center in the Bronx, Pathways Prep in Queens and New World Prep in Staten Island. There are now 20 PAL centers across all five boroughs.

Quoted

Kids at the center also do homework, participate in fitness and arts activities, play games and look for robins, ladybugs and other nature.

"You question the environment around you, and you start to wonder what causes things, why things are the way they are," said Cesar Nina, one of the public school teachers hired by PAL this year with the help of city funding.

Mini iPad price will leave gap in market

Apple's "iPad mini" will attract new customers, but the higher-than-expected price will come as a relief to low-cost tablets such as Amazon.com Inc's Kindle, analysts said, in a muted reaction to the new tablet.

Few analysts revised their price targets for Apple in the wake of the announcement, with one raising their target and one cutting it.

"We believe the iPad mini, with its $329 starting price for the 16GB Wi-Fi-only model, will help Apple reach a new customer base, particularly for holiday gifts to teenagers that may not have been able to afford the higher-end iPad," Canaccord Genuity analyst Michael Walkley wrote in a research note.

He raised his price target slightly on the stock to $800 from $797.

► Media examine the mini.

"We were hoping the price would be at least a little lower"

BARCLAYS CAPITAL ANALYST BEN REITZES

"We were hoping the price would be at least a little lower, given its competition is situated as low as $99, with many starting in the $199-to-$249 range," Barclays Capital analyst Ben Reitzes said. REUTERS

Price too high?

► $329 starting price for a Wi-Fi-only "iPad mini" was higher than many expected, and some analysts said the gadget might lure buyers away from Apple's $499 flagship 10-inch iPad, yet struggle to compete with the cheaper Amazon Kindle Fire and Google Inc's Nexus 7.

More than 60 Barnes & Noble stores get hit by PIN pad fraud

Barnes & Noble Inc., said yesterday that customers who shopped at 63 of its stores as recently as last month may have had their credit or debit card information stolen in what the U.S. bookstore chain called a "sophisticated criminal effort."

The retailer, which operates a total of almost 700 bookstores, said that federal law enforcement authorities have been informed of the breach and that it is supporting their investigation.

Barnes & Noble said it had detected tampering with one personal identification number (PIN) pad device at each of the 63 affected stores and by Sept. 14 had disconnected all the pads at every one of its stores. The tampering affected fewer than 1 percent of its PIN pads.

The company said it did not know how many customers were affected. The stores are in California, Connecticut, Florida, Illinois, Massachusetts, New Jersey, New York, Pennsylvania and Rhode Island, Barnes & Noble said.

Still, the company said its customer database was secure, and that purchases made on the Barnes & Noble website, Nook e-reader and Nook mobile apps were not affected. It also said none of the pads at its college campus stores were affected. REUTERS

How the scam works

Bugs were planted in the PIN pads that allowed credit card and PIN numbers to be pulled.

Barnes & Noble advised customers who have swiped their cards at any of the affected stores to change their debit card PIN numbers as a precaution, and to check their statements for unauthorized transactions.

GOP candidate explains 'God's will' rape remark as a misunderstanding

Richard Mourdock, the Republican candidate in a tight race for a U.S. Senate seat in Indiana, said he was sorry if anyone misunderstood his comment that pregnancy resulting from rape can be "something that God intended to happen."

Mourdock said some people took his remarks at a debate on Tuesday night as condoning rape. He said he abhors rape and violence against women.

Mourdock made the controversial comments during a campaign debate with Democratic Representative Joe Donnelly and Libertarian Andrew Horning.

While explaining his position that the only exception to a ban on abortion should be for the life of a mother, Mourdock said: "I struggled with it myself for a long time, but I came to realize that life is that gift from God, and I think even when life begins in that horrible situation of rape, that it is something God intended to happen."

Earlier in the week, the Mourdock campaign issued an ad featuring Romney's endorsement of the Indiana Republican, saying Mourdock's vote in the Senate could be crucial to repealing Obama's health reform law. REUTERS

Another GOP rape comment

The Mourdock incident was the second time during the 2012 election campaign that a conservative Republican candidate for the U.S. Senate made controversial remarks about rape.

Missouri candidate Todd Akin said in August that women have natural defenses against pregnancy from "legitimate rape." Republicans disavowed Akin's comment and he has trailed Democratic Senator Claire McCaskill in most polls since then.

Some Republicans distanced themselves from Mourdock's comments on Wednesday and Democrats pounced on the remarks, which threatened to put at risk in November a U.S. Senate seat held by Republicans. REUTERS

West Nile virus death toll hits 200

▶ A truck fogs a neighborhood with insecticide.

The U.S. outbreak of West Nile virus has killed 219 people this year, after another 36 deaths from the mosquito-borne disease were reported last week.

In what is the second-worst year on record for the disease, the total number of cases of West Nile virus across the United States grew to 4,725, with 194 new cases reported, according to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention.

Although the pace of new cases has slowed since the outbreak's peak in the late summer, new cases continue to be reported, particularly in states where warm temperatures persist. This year's outbreak has trailed only 2003 in total cases.

Just over half of the cases reported to the CDC this year have been of the severe neuroinvasive form of the disease, which can cause meningitis and encephalitis. REUTERS

[WHOSE TURN TODAY?]

Romney inches ahead in polls

Republican candidate Mitt Romney was one percentage point ahead of President Barack Obama in yesterday's Reuters/Ipsos daily tracking poll in a presidential race that is effectively a dead heat less than two weeks before the Nov. 6 election.

In a reversal of Tuesday's results, Romney led Obama among likely voters by 47 percent to 46 percent, a statistically insignificant margin, in the four-day online tracking poll.

Obama had a lead of 53-42 percent among the 17 percent of the surveyed registered voters who said they had already cast their vote. Like many other polls, the rolling Reuters/Ipsos poll has shown a tight race since shortly after the two candidates met for their first debate on Oct. 3. REUTERS

Costly truth: Trump to give $5M to charity if Obama shows records

Donald Trump offered to pay $5 million to the charity of President Barack Obama's choice if Obama releases his college and passport records, the real estate mogul and television personality said on Wednesday.

"Frankly, it's a check that I very much want to write," Trump said in a YouTube video released via his Twitter and Facebook pages.

Trump has questioned whether Obama's birth certificate issued by the state of Hawaii is legitimate, suggesting Obama was not born in the United States, which could have made him ineligible for the White House. The White House released the long-form copy of Obama's birth certificate in 2011.

Trump did not say what he expected the college and passport records to reveal but was specific in saying he wanted to see all of Obama's college applications and records and his passport applications and records.

Trump said the deadline is 5 p.m. on Oct. 31. REUTERS

Americans easily angered by lack of records?

"President Obama is the least transparent president in the history of this country. If he releases these records, it will end the question and indeed the anger of many Americans." TRUMP

White whale of a deal

Obama predicts deficit deal with Republicans

President Barack Obama voiced confidence that if re-elected he would secure within six months a deficit-reduction deal with Republicans equivalent to the "grand bargain" he failed to achieve last year.

Win or lose, Obama faces a so-called "fiscal cliff" of automatic across-the-board spending cuts and tax increases set for the end of the year.

REUTERS

"It will probably be messy. It won't be pleasant. But I am absolutely confident that we can get ... the grand bargain."

OBAMA

Promises, promises

Obama's hope: Where did it go?

Dan Palmer, 22, spends his days manning phone banks and making sure his fellow students are registered to vote. Oh, and he studies for a political science degree. "People talk about an enthusiasm gap, but people my age are just as enthusiastic about Obama as we were four years ago," Palmer says. "It's just that many of the 2008 volunteers have jobs now and can't volunteer."

In 2008, Barack Obama's campaign attracted a vast army of enthusiastic volunteers.

"This year I made a one-time donation, but I'm not working on the campaign. I'll be voting for Obama in 2012, but it's due more to my belief that Romney would be a worse president," says Brian Massie, a 2008 volunteer.

THE GREAT GEOGRAPHIC UNKNOWN

President Barack Obama clearly dominated Mitt Romney on style and substance in Monday's final debate on foreign policy. But beyond the gamesmanship of who won or lost, Mitt Romney betrayed a level of ignorance so profound that it should disqualify him from being president.

On Monday night, Romney tried to explain that Syria is strategically important to Iran because Syria is Iran's "route to the sea." First of all, simply looking at a map reveals how idiotic this is.

Syria doesn't even share a border with Iran — you would have to go through Turkey or Iraq. Even worse, Iran has 2,000 miles of its very own coastline along the Caspian Sea and the Persian Gulf. Iran's "route to the sea" is nothing more than "any road heading north-south."

This is the seventh time Romney's has made this ridiculous argument this year, without once correcting it. Even after Monday's debate, Romney's campaign insisted that Romney merely meant to say that Syria is Iran's route to the "Mediterranean Sea."

But this is just as ignorant — Iran has ample access to the Mediterranean through its neighbor and trading partner Turkey.

Imagine if it had been President Obama who had shown this level of ignorance on such a vital issue. Republicans would talk of nothing else. Yet, what should be the biggest headline from Monday's debate has mostly been ignored (it wasn't even mentioned in yesterday's Metropolitik).

This isn't just a bit of trivia. The use of economic sanctions to deter Iran from any potential nuclear ambitions has been the central national security issue in this election.

How can Mitt Romney even comprehend those sanctions, let alone criticize how the President has been using them, when he doesn't even understand the basic geography of Iran, or how and with whom it trades?

Could Simpson's clothing line have company in the closet?

▶ Jessica and Joe Simpson.

Looks like Ashlee and Jessica Simpson are going to have a lot to talk about around the Thanksgiving dinner table.

First up? Their mother, Tina Simpson, filed for divorce from their father, Joe Simpson, after 34 years of marriage last month. "It is an amicable split and there is no third party involved," a rep for the family says. "Any other related allegations are completely false. The family appreciates your respect for their privacy at this time."

The "allegations" they refer to? Well, the National Enquirer is reporting that their father, Joe Simpson, is gay. According to the tabloid, Simpson has a 20-year-old boyfriend, who was reportedly in the car with the former youth pastor and Baptist minister when he was busted for a DUI on Aug. 4.

I'll give you a second to let that sink in.

Got it together? Good. The National Enquirer even has a source from the family: "The police report stated that there was someone else in the car with Joe. Some reports have stated it was Tina, but now the belief is that it may well have been a boyfriend."

Of course, there is a good chance this is just a big, fat and very juicy rumor. After all, if Jessica Simpson's father were gay, don't you think her shoe line would be a little more fierce?

Houston family makes reality TV show

Whitney Houston's family is making a reality TV show, supposedly about how they are "coping" with the loss of the pop star. "The Houstons: On Our Own" premiered last night on Lifetime.

"The show has kept the family close together, [instead of] isolated from one another. We talk about things, we are very open, and we pay attention to the ones who need consoling the most," Pat Houston, Whitney's manager and sister-in-law, told Reuters.

The show opens with Houston's 19-year-old daughter, Bobbi Kristina, drinking an alcoholic beverage and announcing her engagement to Nick Gordon, 23, the boy Whitney Houston "adopted."

Didn't anyone in that family learn anything about showing a young girl into the spotlight when maybe she wasn't mature enough to handle it?

MARY ELIZABETH WINSTEAD GETS 'SMASHED'

► Hipster dreamgirl takes on the role of a woman struggling with alcoholism in her latest film

SONY PICTURES CLASSICS

She's made a name for herself backing up a vampire-slaying Abraham Lincoln, as John McClaine's daughter in "Live Free or Die Hard" and as a hipster dream girl in "Scott Pilgrim vs. the World." But despite the fun she's had in the pop culture movie world, Mary Elizabeth Winstead has been hungry for a good, solid indie drama. But taking on the lead in "Smashed" did come with a few hesitations.

"It was scary for me to take it on because I'd never done anything like that before. And I think for years, like most actors, you sit around going, 'Why can't I get one of those parts that's, like, really great?'" Winstead says with a laugh. "But then when you actually get the part you're like, 'Oh s—, I have to figure out how to do this.' So it was a little scary. But just the fact that I got through it and I did it and the response has been good, my confidence has grown a lot."

Playing an elementary school teacher who realizes she's an alcoholic held several challenges, not least of which was convincingly pretending to be drunk. "It's really daunt-

► Mary Elizabeth Winstead says it's incredibly hard to play drunk.

"The whole thing about being drunk is that you're out of control. And if you're acting, you're ... in control and it kind of defeats the whole purpose of making it authentic."

MARY ELIZABETH WINSTEAD

ing. Even the best actors sometimes, it's just really hard," she admits. "The whole thing about being drunk is that you're out of control. And if you're acting, you're sometimes sort of in control and it kind of defeats the whole purpose of making it authentic."

Luckily, Winstead found help in the form of a book, "The Power of the Actor," given to her by co-writer and director James Ponsoldt. "It has an entire chapter dedicated to playing drunk," Winstead explains. "It's kind of just like hypnosis in a way. You just take yourself through all the steps of what it feels like to be drunk, and it just kind of plays a little mind trick on you and you feel really loose and out of your body. It really helped just let me let go of the fear of worrying about whether it felt real or not because I just felt really loose and buzzed, for sure."

Of course, that only covers half of the journey her character takes. To research the heart of the story, Winstead spent a month attending Alcoholic Anonymous meetings around Los Angeles — though always at the invitation of a member. "It was great. Everyone was so relatable, and that was my first step," she says. "This wasn't someone different from me. She drinks, and I don't drink a lot, but if you take that part out of it she's pretty much exactly like me. That was my first step into figuring her out."

The sport of stripping

Agyness Deyn has made a lot of headlines for her "retirement" from modeling to pursue an acting career. But with the release of her first major film role — as the stripper girlfriend of a small-time drug dealer in "Pusher" — Deyn turns to Metro to set the record straight on that retirement thing.

Since you've started acting, you've been labeled as "retired" from modeling. Is that accurate? The more acting I do, the less modeling I do — because of physical time but also because my enjoyment for one rather than the other is more. I did modeling for 12 years, and now this is so fresh and amazing that I just want to do this all the time.

How enlightening was your research into stripping for this role?

When I started working with girls on the London scene and going to work with them, the vision that you have of a stripper in your head from a fantasy perspective is like so a fantasy. I just hung out with them on a personal level, at their homes — especially this one girl called Jen who was amazing and so generous with everything about her. I went to work with her, and it was amazing, the security of the venues and the lifestyle — not just security as in the security guys, but those guys are like big brothers. It's like a big family. And the girls are really amazing at their job. They're like athletes — their bodies and what they can do, and they make it look so easy. I just came away from it feeling a lot of respect for the industry.

Crime pays

Why do you think there continues to be this appeal of movies about drugs and crime?

► I think it's interesting and exciting, I suppose. It's like hyperreality, you know? It's like the imagination of what you don't see in everyday life, so you want to go to the movies and you want to see something that's either shocking in an emotional way or takes you on a journey in some way that's not your way in real life. It takes you away from your real life, and I feel like the majority of people, that's not their real life. [Laughs]

10 REASONS TO HIT THE MULTIPLEX

WARNER BROS. PICTURES

Must-see

1 'Cloud Atlas'

We're prepared to be as confused by this film as we were when dinosaurs showed up in that hot Brad Pitt movie "The Tree of Life." But no matter. If Tom Hanks, Halle Berry and the Wachowski siblings (who brought us "The Matrix") have signed on, this time warp has to be worth the ticket price.

► Meet the ladies of the future in "Cloud Atlas," a movie hitting theaters this weekend.

2 'Chasing Mavericks'

Gerard Butler is the Bodhi to Jonny Weston's Johnny Utah in this story about a teen (Weston) who aspires to ride "maverick" waves and the cranky veteran surfer (Butler) who tutors him.

3 'Fun Size'

Halloween. High school kids. A raging party. A lost younger brother. You imagine the rest.

4 'Silent Hill: Revelation 3D'

The first "Silent Hill" film that came out in 2006 didn't exactly win the favor of critics. But perhaps this sequel, which like its predecessor is based on the video game of the same name, will fare better in 3-D.

5 'Alex Cross'

While Madea endures a period of forced retirement, her creator and Dr. Jekyll extraordinaire Tyler Perry plays against type in this adaptation of the best-selling James Patterson crime thrillers based on the title character.

6 'Paranormal Activity 4'

While we continue to mourn the end of the "Saw" franchise — just kidding, no one misses it — we are comforted by yet another franchise mainstay of the Halloween season.

7 'Argo'

Ben Affleck directs and stars in this engaging thriller about six American Foreign Service workers trapped in the home of a Canadian Ambassador during the 1979 Iranian hostage crisis.

8 'Seven Psychopaths'

A screenwriter doesn't have to look far for inspiration when penning a new film about deranged individuals, considering his best friend steals dogs for a living.

9 'Sinister'

Prepare to be spooked by this haunting tale about a crime writer who moves his family into a home that was the scene of murders.

10 'Here Comes the Boom'

Star Kevin James and director Frank Coraci bring you the story of a teacher (James) who attempts becoming a mixed martial arts specialist in order to raise money for his struggling school.

Maison Martin Margiela with H&M will be available at select stores Nov. 15. For more info, visit www.hm.com.

Avant-garde for the masses

► Looks from the Maison Martin Margiela with H&M line are finally revealed ► The collection reissues iconic pieces from the French house

This has been one hell of a week for high-low designer collaborations. First, it was announced that Prabal Gurung is the next big name to create a line for Target. Next, Narciso Rodriguez feted his new collection for Kohl's DesignNation based on his trip to Istanbul. And yesterday, the granddaddy of them all took center stage: The unveiling of Maison Martin Margiela for H&M.

What makes this line so special is that it's basically a greatest hits retrospective of the avant-garde brand, including pieces from when elusive founder Martin Margiela was at the creative helm. Expect to see the masculine silhouettes, oversized clothing, exposed seams and cool draping the house is known for, along with some of their more conceptual, kooky items, like mirrored leggings, candy wrapper clutch bags and a duvet-turned-coat. To celebrate the artsy collaboration, H&M threw a fitting soiree at a dilapidated nine-story building downtown. At the party/art installation, modern dancers performed in the looks for the audience, which included celebs such as Sarah Jessica Parker and Kanye West. We like how SJP summed it all up on the red carpet: "What can I say about H&M? All you have to do is look at the men and women lined up very early to get a piece of a collection like this. It's make luxury available to people, and that's wonderful."

Casual sex isn't all it's cracked up to be

► While some consider it the height of adventure, a one night stand with a stranger has little to offer

As babies, when we see strangers we get scared and cling to our mommies. As toddlers, we're told not to talk to strangers or (God forbid) take their candy. And now, as adults, we think we should be able to sleep with one we meet at a bar and feel OK about it the next day. But if

The Hookup

AMBER

WWW.AMBERMADISONONLINE.COM

we're honest with ourselves, having sex with someone you barely know is just kinda gross.

For my latest book — "Are All Guys Assholes?" — I traveled around the country talking to guys about (among other things) casual sex. Overwhelmingly, they described it as unsatisfying, disappointing and something that left them feeling empty. The men and women I coach now echo the same feelings. And yet, in moments of weakness while longing for human connection, many continue to do it.

The truth is, the physical act of sex is pretty unappealing. At the time, sex feels sexy because it's more than the physical act; you're mixing in romantic feelings and arousal. The romantic feelings are important here — they're the things that cloud your judgment in the most wonderful way so that you think that when the object of your affection burps, farts or snots all over themselves it's "cute." Take out the romantic feelings (because you can't have them for someone you barely know) and take out the arousal (which ends after an orgasm) and you're left with simply the act of sex and a strange sweaty body — not the human connection that probably motivated you in the first place.

The point of this article isn't to be judgmental, make you feel guilty or ruin your plans for tonight. It's to encourage you to pursue the types of relationships — sexual or otherwise — that make you feel good. When you're young, single and living in a city there is so much pressure to be living your "glory days" to the fullest. But sometimes our idea of "fun" doesn't translate to actually being fun, and we owe it to ourselves to recognize the difference.

EdenPURE® reopens Ohio factory creates 250 new jobs

New models shipped direct from warehouse at 49% savings Never be cold again

Richard Karn,
North Canton, Ohio

I was fortunate enough to attend the grand opening of the new EdenPURE® factory in North Canton, Ohio. The new plant brought hundreds of new jobs back to Ohio and reversed the common practice of sending Midwest manufacturing jobs to China. Now, EdenPURE® continues to ramp up production for the coming Winter with exciting new models and hundreds of new employees as this Made in America success story continues to grow.

American Labor, American Quality

With over 3 million portable heaters sold EdenPURE® is the best selling portable infrared heating system in North America. However, like any classic, EdenPURE® has dozens of would-be competitors who create Asian copies at low prices using cheap, foreign labor. Don't be fooled by these imitations. Look for the EdenPURE® logo and the Made in North Canton, Ohio stamp. Save like millions of others on your heating bills and say "NO" to cheap foreign imitators.

Save up to 49% on 2013 EdenPURE®s

Now readers can save up to 49% ($229 the largest savings ever on new EdenPURE®s). EdenPURE® is not just the best-selling portable heating system in North America. As an EdenPURE® owner I rank EdenPURE® #1 for quality, safety and efficiency. And now is the perfect time to save like never before on our expanded 2013 EdenPURE® line made in our brand new North Canton, Ohio facility.

With two models EdenPURE® can meet all of your heating requirements 365 days a year.

Stay Comfortable 365 Days a Year

"Never be cold again" is the EdenPURE® promise. EdenPURE® provides you insurance against the cold all year long. Stay comfortable on those unseasonably chilly evenings no matter the season. I live in California but believe me it gets cold at night. Keep your expensive furnace turned down until it's absolutely necessary. And if we are fortunate enough to experience a mild winter as many of us did in the Midwest last year, you keep your furnace off all season and save even bigger.

As Al Borland on Home Improvement I was the man with all the answers. However, as Richard Karn I still look for money saving and efficient heating in my home. I have an EdenPURE® Infrared Portable Heater in my California home and like millions of others found it to be a super-safe, reliable source of portable heat all year long.

New, More Efficient Models

The engineers at EdenPURE® listened to their millions of customers and somehow managed to improve the #1 portable heater in North America. Through old fashioned American ingenuity the new EdenPURE® line is more efficient to save you even more money.

The EdenPURE® Personal Heater now heats a larger area, an increase from 350 square feet to 500 square feet. That's a 30% increase in efficiency! And EdenPURE® is proud to introduce the 2013 Model 750. The new Model 750 is perfect for larger areas and heats up to 750 square feet. But the best thing about the Model 750 is the price. We priced the Model 750 at only $50 above the Personal Heater. This means you receive a 33% increase in performance for only $50. That's American engineering at its best!

The EdenPURE® can cut your heating bills and pay for itself in a matter of weeks, and then start putting a great deal of extra money in your pocket after that.

Super Safe Infrared Heat

Now remember, a major cause of residential fires in the United States is carelessness and faulty portable heaters. The choice of fire and safety professional, Captain Mike Hornby, the EdenPURE® has no exposed heating elements that can cause a fire. And a redundant home protection system that simply shuts the EdenPURE® down if it senses danger. That's why grandparents and parents love the EdenPURE®.

The outside of the EdenPURE® only gets warm to the touch so that it will not burn children or pets. And your pet may be just like my dog who has reserved a favorite spot near the EdenPURE®. You see the EdenPURE® uses infrared heat. And just as pets enjoy basking in a beam of sunlight they try to stay close to EdenPURE®'s "bone-warming" infrared heat.

The Health Secret is in the Copper

How it works:

Heats floor to the same temperature as ceiling.

1. Electricity ignites powerful SYLVANIA infrared lamp.

2. The quartz infrared lamp gently warms the patented copper heating chambers.

3. The soft heat "rides" the humidity in the room and provides even, moist, soft heat ceiling to floor and wall to wall without reducing oxygen and humidity.

CUTAWAY VIEW

SYLVANIA is a registered trademark of OSRAM SYLVANIA Inc. used under license.

Richard Karn is a paid spokesperson for EdenPURE®.

EdenFLOW™ technology uses copper heating chambers to take the energy provided by our special SYLVANIA infrared bulbs and distribute our famous soft heat evenly throughout the room.

Now our copper isn't ordinary. It's 99.9% pure antimicrobial copper from an over 150 year old American owned company in Pennsylvania. So your EdenPURE® heater is continuously pushing soft, healthy, infrared heat throughout your room.

Keeping your little ghosts and goblins safe this Halloween

► Your children can enjoy holiday traditions safely ► Experts weigh in on how to make sure you and your family don't experience any Halloween horrors ► Tips on dressing them appropriately

You'd never let your child go to a stranger's house unattended any other time of year, so why should Halloween be any different?

Nancy A. McBride, the National Safety Director for the Center for Missing & Exploited Children says children should be accompanied by a parent or trusted adult and walked to the door by the parent to receive treats.

"Know the neighborhood in which you plan to trick-or-treat. Pick houses that you feel comfortable letting your child visit. Do not visit homes that are isolated or poorly lit," she says. Make sure your child is able to see and move easily in his or her costume. "Consider having your child carry a flashlight so that they can see more easily and are easily seen," she notes. And even if your child is old enough to out without your supervision, always make sure he or she is in a group.

If you're still nervous, there are several tracking apps that can provide an extra layer of security to keep track of your children via cell phone without being intrusive. The Snap Secure Geo-fence for Android sets a virtual boundary. "If they stray from that perimeter, or don't return to a specified location within a certain period of time, it automatically sends you an e-mail alert," says Jiren Parikh, CEO of Snap MyLife, Inc. the developer of the app. Their other app, the Snap Secure Family Locator, "lets you check in on their exact location at any time, in real-time, by using your own mobile device or Web dashboard," he notes.

Finally, keep in mind there

Safe and secure costumes

Not only do you have to get your kid a costume, but you also have to make sure it won't hurt them. Here is some advice from the ACEP, a national medical specialty society representing emergency medicine, which wants to make sure your kid stays out of the emergency room this Halloween:

► Avoid costumes that could cause children to trip, such as baggy pants, long hems, high heels and oversized shoes. Also, make sure they don't obstruct the child's sight or vision and they are made out of flame-resistant materials, such as nylon or polyester.

► Add reflective tape to costumes so your child is more visible to motor vehicles and avoid dark colors.

► Check accessories such as swords, knives, wands and other pointed objects. Make sure they are made from flexible materials and have dulled edges.

DIGITAL VISION

► Keep your child safe while trick-or-treating.

Additional safety tips from NCMEC

► Be sure children do not approach any vehicle, occupied or not, and make sure they get away quickly if someone gets out of a vehicle and starts to approach them.

► Children should never enter a home without his or her parent's permission.

► Teach your child to say "No!" or "This is not my mother/father!" in a very loud voice if someone tries to get him or her to go somewhere.

are different ways to celebrate the holiday that don't involve going to strangers' houses.

"I'm a big fan of organizing a home or community party as an alternative to trick-or-treating," claims McBride.

5 Spooktacular ideas for kids' costumes

Still in a tizzy about what to dress your little one up as for Halloween? Don't despair. Leslie Venokur and Risa Goldberg, founders of Big City Moms (www.bigcitymoms.com), an online resource for New York City moms and moms to be, shared with us the top trends they see for Halloween costumes this year.

1 The classics can't be beat. Venokur and Goldberg say the most popular costumes are still the classics, such as princess and storybook characters. For boys, superheroes are always clutch.

2 Use pop culture cues. Other popular costumes? The founders say they see kids

Showers ahead

Big City Moms are hosting what they are calling "The Biggest Baby Shower Ever" on Oct. 30 from 6:30 to 9 p.m. New and expectant parents can browse and shop baby es-going as the iPhone, Lady Gaga and even as "Angry Birds."

3 Dress kids as grown-ups. Kids love to play pretend about what they'll be when they grow up — why should it be any different for Halloween? Firemen, chefs, dancers and doctors are all top choices.

4 Get creative. Children should be encouraged to create their own characters. It's a great time to let your little artist's creativity shine!

5 Get spooky. According to Venokur and Goldberg, typical Halloween themes such as witches, vampires and ghosts are always in style. METRO

Americans to spend more on their tricks and treats this year

► Halloween: It's a scary time of year for your wallet.

When the black cats, witches and trick-or-treaters come out for Halloween this year, a record 170 million people in the United States will dress up, celebrate and spend up to $8 billion, according to a retail industry survey.

Seven in 10 Americans will take part in the festivities, and the average person will spend $79.82 on decorations, costumes and candy — up from $72.31 last year, according to the National Retail Federation's 2012 Halloween consumer spending survey conducted by research group B/Ginsight.

$8B

Amount of money Americans will spend on Halloween this year

Halloween is the eighth-biggest selling season in the United States. It is far behind the winter holidays, which rank as the No. 1 retail selling season.

Among people celebrating Halloween this year, more than half will decorate their home or yard, up from 49.5 percent last year, and 45 percent plan to dress in costume, also up from last year, according to the survey.

More than one-third plan on throwing or attending a Halloween party, and 33.2 percent will take children trick-or-treating.

Despite the expected increase in Halloween spending this year, one-fourth of U.S. consumers said the state of the economy will affect their Halloween plans. To compensate, many said they will spend less overall, while others plan to make a costume instead of buying one, or purchase less candy. REUTERS

The teeth-friendly pumpkin cupcake

Forget the costumes — what's scary about Halloween is all the sugar that kids consume. Luckily, there's the pumpkin cupcake from Billy's Bakery in New York, made with Truvia Baking Blend. They were kind enough to share their recipe with us to keep you and your dentist happy:

Billy's Bakery pumpkin cupcake with cinnamon cream cheese frosting

For the cupcake:

- 6 eggs
- 2 ½ cups pumpkin puree
- 2 cups Truvia Baking Blend
- 2 cups oil
- 3 cups flour
- 1 tbsp. baking powder

No country for old flip-flopers

Reading the letters Tuesday after the last presidential debate, during which Romney totally reversed himself on a number of issues, I was amazed to see how many finally get it.

For example, not long ago, one of the Republican talking points was “Don’t set a date for leaving Afghanistan!” In the last debated, he said, “I agree with the president, we should get out by the end of 2014.”

Another example: In the previous debate, he noted some parts of Obamacare he liked and would keep. The other night, he was back to overturning it totally, again. The media has been calling him out on these reversals all day today.

It looks like it doesn’t matter to some what Romney says because his voters’ main issue is not defense or tax reform or energy policy. It is just defeating Obama.

And it appears to be based more on personal enmity than on anything else. I for one hope this country, finally, will move past this stuff—toward a future based on understanding what the right thing is and doing it.

PAUL SIMONS, VIA E-MAIL

If you’re going to build a road, at least build it here

was about foreign policy, not pocketbook issues.” If only she or anyone in the news would finally do their job and inform people by reporting the truth: that the two ARE directly connected. Our defense and foreign policy spending is where the largest amount of our borrowing and tax dollars go. Reducing it would be the single greatest way to fix our economy and pocketbooks. Want to build a road in the U.S.? Pay for it with the money used to build one in Afghanistan.

JASON FARBER, VIA E-MAIL

News columnist Susan Ferrechio’s claim that there was no clear winner in the final debate is completely laughable. President Obama wiped the floor with Romney and his silk suit. However, Obama did fail at one aspect of the debate: the economy. He failed to repeatedly state that our sluggish economy is the direct result of the policies of the Bush administration and that Romney’s economic plan is a return to those exact failed policies!

ROBERT LA ROSA, VIA E-MAIL

Independence doesn’t come with a nanny attached

We are two weeks away from the election. Gov. Romney survived three debates and all the liberal media bias. Romney is qualified and will be elected the next president of the United States.

President Obama tried the last four years. His ideas and policies did not work. We do not need Obamacare; more government programs are not the solution for the future. Romney has fresh ideas and a plan for the future that will make this country great again.

JOHN MCLAUGHLIN, VIA E-MAIL

ISLANDERS GET HIP

► NHL franchise announces 2015 move to Brooklyn, Barclays Center
► Team will keep same name, logo

The New York Islanders finally have a home.

Owner Charles Wang announced the franchise has agreed to move to Brooklyn's Barclays Center beginning with the 2015-16 season in a press conference yesterday.

"Today, we are announcing that the New York Islanders will remain in the local marketplace as we entered into a 25-year agreement beginning with the 2015-16 season to play in this state-of-the-art building," Wang said. "I want to congratulate [Barclays Center majority owner and developer Bruce Ratner] on achieving his goal of bringing professional sports back to Brooklyn as the New York Islanders will join the Brooklyn Nets at the Barclays Center. This announcement reunites these two franchises."

Along with Wang, Islanders general manager Garth Snow, vice president of corporate sponsorships Mike Bossy, assistant coach and senior advisor to the general manager Doug Weight and head coach Jack Capuano also represented the Islanders. NHL commissioner Gary Bettman was in attendance, as was Mayor Michael Bloomberg, Brooklyn Borough President Marty Markowitz, Barclays Center and Brooklyn Nets CEO Brett Yormark.

Wang said the negotiations with Barclays executives to move the franchise took "seven months." He added that he will remain as owner of the Islanders, who will retain their name, and that the team will honor the remainder of their lease at Nassau Coliseum.

Wang had long been frus-

Bettman reiterates NHL position

Following the Islanders' press conference, Bettman said it was up to "the Players' Association to either negotiate with us over the proposal to save the 82-game season or to make an offer, and they've declined to do either."

When asked by Metro if a shortened season was a possibility, Bettman said, "Sure, you can play an abbreviated season. I'd rather play a full season. And I'm sure our fans would rather [we] play a full season. That's why we made the offer we did. We very much want to play and we're very disappointed that we're not." ● METRO/DG trated that plans to privately and publicly finance a new Nassau Coliseum had collapsed due to politics.

"We tried very hard to keep the Islanders in their original home in Nassau County," Wang said, before thanking Nassau County executive Ed Mangano "for trying to find a solution to keep us there."

"Our goal from the outset was to have the Islanders play in a local, world-class facility that possessed the amenities that our fans deserve."

"I am disappointed to learn

► Islanders fans, including one wearing young star John Tavares's jersey, watch Wang's announcement yesterday of the team's move to the Barclays Center.

of the Islanders' plan to relocate to Brooklyn," Town of Hempstead supervisor Kate Murray said in a statement. "They've been a valued part of this region's identity, and we wish the team great success in the future."

The arena will host two regular season Kontinental Hockey League games in January. When asked by Metro if he would attend the KHL games, Bettman said, "probably not."

Ryan wants Bush apology

Just a month removed from the "hot sauce" comments that landed him in hot water with one of the league's biggest stars, Jets head coach Rex Ryan is hoping for an apology for Reggie Bush's insulting comments.

Ryan later explained his "hot sauce" comment prior to the season's first

Dolphins game did not mean they planned to hurt Bush, as he thought.

In a radio interview, Bush said "what goes around, comes around," referring to Jets cornerback Darrelle Revis's season-ending knee injury against Miami.

"I apologize for my comments," Ryan said yesterday.

"I expect him to do the same."

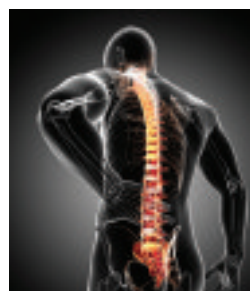

"I think [Bush] got caught up in the moment. Obviously nobody likes to get hurt and that certainly wasn't my intention and I hope he understands that he doesn't ever have to say anything or reach out to Revis," Ryan said. "But I'd expect him to for the simple fact that's his peer, one of the elite players in the league."

A-Rod remains focal point

Most of manager Joe Girardi's pre-game press conferences during nine postseason games focused on Alex Rodriguez.

Six days after the Yankees were swept out of the ALCS against the Tigers, Rodriguez remained the focal point of Girardi's postmortem press conference.

During a roughly 27-minute session with reporters yesterday, Girardi stated he expects Rodriguez to be back when spring training begins.

"I expect Alex to be our every day third baseman, I do," Girardi said. "What's he going to have to show me? That's he's healthy and ready to go, that's the bottom line, that he has no concerns and we have no concerns about putting him out there every day."

Rodriguez has hit 30 home runs 14 times in his career. Over the last two seasons, while playing 99 and 122 games respectively, he has 34 home runs and 73 extra-base hits combined.

"They were down on Derek Jeter, I guess it would have been last year, the first three months they were concerned about what was going on and his productivity," Girardi said. "We saw what he did the second half and then what he did this year. So you always have a chance as a player to rewrite things and make an adjustment."

Yankees in brief

► Sabathia

Girardi not worried about Sabathia

At some point soon, CC Sabathia will visit with noted orthopedist Dr. James Andrews in Florida. Many pitchers who make that trip wind up with major surgery, but Girardi is not expecting that to be the case with his ace left-hander.

"Obviously we know that CC had a little bit of a groin problem, a little bit of an elbow problem, during the course of the season," Joe Girardi said. "He pitched very well for us down the stretch which made me feel good about what's going on. At times people need to be evaluated to make sure that everything is OK."

Even with two brief DL stints over the summer, Sabathia wound pitching 200 innings and winning 15 games for the sixth straight season. ● METRO/LF

Rivera expected back next season

A day after getting hurt, an emotional Mariano Rivera said he planned on coming back. Being a first-hand witness to some of Rivera's rehab process, his manager agrees.

"I don't think you push a rehab like he pushed it unless you have some interest in possibly coming back, Girardi said." ● METRO/LF
